

Jane Kerr

FAMILY MEDIATOR AT
WELLS FAMILY MEDIATION

BIO

Jane began her career in investment banking in the city. She has a degree in psychology and, after completing a law conversion course and bar finals, she worked in various legal positions in both the private and public sector. Jane has over fifteen years' experience of dealing with families and children in dispute. For over ten years, Jane worked for a leading London local authority, managing a team of advisers dealing with a range of issues affecting families and individuals following relationship breakdown. She took her solicitor exams in 2014 and then trained as a Family Mediator in 2016. Jane has practiced exclusively as a family mediator since 2016 with Kerr Family Mediation. She joined Wells Family Mediation as a partner in 2018. Outside of the world of family mediation, Jane spends time reading and travelling with her partner, daughter, step-children and dog. Wells Family Mediation support Dad.info with their expertise contributing articles and keeping us up to date with legal issues that impact Dads and separated parents generally.
